

Andrew Alliance

Case Study

Challenge

Andrew Alliance, based in Geneva, Switzerland, retained NAI Hunneman to find office space in Boston's West Suburban market for their growing U.S. operations. The firm was quickly outgrowing their office space in Copley Square, and were ready to expand their footprint outside of the city.

The company desired a smooth transition that would not interrupt their business operations, while reducing employee drive times and simplifying access to their building.

Results

The NAI Hunneman Team did extensive review of available product on the market and toured Andrew Alliance through upwards of 15 properties throughout 4 markets. It was determined that "plug & play" space would be their best option so they could seamlessly transition from their downtown office to their new location in the suburbs.

The team identified a suite located at 135 Beaver Street to for Andrew Alliance's. The suite had the perfect amount of office, storage, and conference room space for their needs and was move-in ready.

“

The NAI Hunneman team toured us through a variety of suburban properties before quickly and smoothly closing on our top choice. They were able to get us into “move-in ready” space that covered our needs. Our commutes are minimal, we have room to grow, and our suite is beautiful.”-
